Inspiration built on experience.

Each member of our team brings a wealth of experience and a dedication to quality to every home we build. Meet the team:

Andrew J. Formato earned an economics degree at Trinity College in Hartford, Connecticut, and has worked as a sales trader at Smith Barney and Sanford C. Bernstein. From 2000 through 2003, he co-headed OTC sales trading for Canadian Imperial Bank. Today, Mr. Formato is a managing director for Weeden & Co. in Greenwich, Connecticut and serves on the board of M.I.N.T., a children's charity.

Richard J. Calta earned degrees in business and finance from the University of Arizona in 1984. He began his career as a sales trader for the brokerage firm LIK Securities, where he executed multimillion-share orders. Mr. Calta started his own fund, Rajo Capital Management, in 1989. He resides in Payson and Paradise Valley, and serves on the board for his alma mater and chairs the volunteer board for RAG, a golden retriever rescue organization.

Justin Taylor grew up around the construction business in Payson, receiving hands-on training in just about every trade from his father, a general contractor. His parents instilled in him the importance of honesty and integrity, and he carries those values forward in every aspect of homebuilding.

Edward M. Jim grew up on the North Rim of the Grand Canyon. He has lived in Payson for 15 years, where he owns the Travel Network and is an entrepreneur. With an engineering background, Mr. Jim has a passion for construction and has been involved at Chaparral Pines and The Rim since their inception.

A mission of excellence.

As a custom builder, Dream Catcher Homes strives to consistently exceed customers' expectations of luxury and quality. We craft each home with genuine care and pride, allowing us to produce the finest homes possible. By taking the time to explain every phase of construction, we ensure that each home fits both its owner's lifestyle and its natural environment. At Dream Catcher, our goal is to build first-class homes that leave a lasting impression.
