Lanny Floyd, Principal

Blueprint for success

Eagle River Investments specializes in turning clients' notions of a perfect mountain home into the classic lines, textured surfaces and rustic elegance of grand hillside estates comfortably nestled in the pines that will be cherished for generations. In business since 1996, principals Lanny and Jerry Floyd see each new custom home project as an exciting opportunity to create a one-of-a-kind masterpiece that artfully blends the nuances of each client with the beauty of the surrounding landscape to create a wholly enchanting living experience.

Art and architecture

Eagle River's goal for every client is to collaborate closely as a customer-builder team, working together to craft a mountain retreat that is enduring in beauty, functional in design, and simple to maintain.

Elements of nature

An Eagle River home is an architectural homage to the majestic grandeur of the land that surrounds it. The company builds with some of the finest raw elements borne of the earth, including granite, travertine, cedar, copper and bronze. Through skilled craftsmanship and extraordinary attention to detail, they are fashioned into an estate of rare beauty that reflects the true nature of its surroundings, both inside and out.

The luxury of space

With such a spectacular setting in Arizona's sweeping high country, Eagle River believes each home should embrace the same sense of grandeur with open and airy floorplans. The company offers its clients spacious designs that often incorporate vaulted ceilings, panoramic window views, music rooms, greenhouses, huge walk-in closets, large patios and decks, impressive master suites, dog runs, and garages with extra storage solutions.
